History

Exam board: OCR

Specification: H505 (A Level)

Course Intent

Our chosen units give students a broad range of historical understanding and enables them to challenge narratives that are often simplistic. Students will also develop the skills of critical analysis and evaluation. Our aim is that students to leave the course with a greater understanding of diverse and interlinked world history.

Course Delivery

Teachers will deliver the majority of content in lessons using a variety of teaching methods. There is a reasonable amount of independent study which will include additional reading, essays and structured written tasks.

Course Content

Unit 1: The Early Tudors 1485-1588 (Y12 – 25%)

This unit will cover some of the key issues of one of the defining eras of British history. How did the beginning of the Tudor dynasty mark a new era? What were Henry VIII's monumental decisions that managed to change the face of Britain? Were they driven by his love-life or by greed? What drove people to rebel against Tudor monarchs? Why is Mary Tudor known as 'Bloody Mary'? The examination (1hr 30 mins) will include a knowledge based essay and critical source evaluation.

Unit 2: African Kingdoms 1400-1800 (Y12 – 15%)

This is an exciting unit that enables us to investigate Africa prior to European interference. Within the unit we will uncover the rich and sophisticated political, societal and economic systems developed in West Africa, often through artistic visual representation. The unit investigates four case studies: Songhay, Kongo, Benin and Oyo and Dahomey. The examination (1 hr) will include a short answer question on significance and an essay.

Unit 3: Russia and its Rulers (Y12/Y13 – 40%)

A study of the last Tsars and the Communist Commissars of Russia. This unit explores the changes and the continuities of Russian history from 1855-1964. Students start to unravel the mysteries of the Russia that lurched dramatically and bloodily from being under the yoke of one of the world's most famous and most wealthy ruling families- the Romanovs, to a different kind of despotism under the dictatorship of Stalin. However, we will also challenge the idea that Russian leadership was purely based on terror, as we investigate some of the experimentation that leaders used to maintain such a diverse nation. Students will also analyse the opinions of historians and form their own in depth study. The examination (2hrs 30 mins) will consist of a critical evaluation of historical interpretations and two essay questions.

Unit 4: The Cold War coursework (Y13 – 20%)

Whilst key content and skills are taught in lessons, this unit gives students an opportunity to work independently and build their analytical and evaluative skills. Students choose from a list of seven questions and produce a 3,000 - 4,000 word essay on their chosen subject. This can be daunting for students, but they are supported every step of the way.

Frequently Asked Questions:

What are the entry requirements?

If History is taken at GCSE it should be passed at 5 or above and at least one English/Humanities/Social Science subject should be passed with a 6.

What skills & personal qualities required / developed by course?

Students will need to enjoy reading and thinking for themselves. They will develop the skill to critically evaluate sources of information, as well as the ability to analyse information and reach substantiated conclusions. You will need to be able to produce a highly analytical and well-structured argument, both orally and on paper.

What resources are available?

All lesson resources are available digitally for students to access via the department student SharePoint. Comprehensive revision resources are provided for each unit. There is no need to purchase any additional resources.

What visits and other opportunities are available?

We work closely with the Bristol Historical Association, encouraging students to attend lectures, conferences and take part in their annual quiz. SMRT teams have won for the past three years running, and so will be looking to continue their reign!

Where can History lead me to in further education and careers?

Studying history can lead to many different things. The skills of critical evaluation and academic writing are coveted by universities, and strong grade in the subject is useful in application to any degree course. History students often, but not exclusively, move into areas of law, civil service, politics, international affairs and journalism due to their academic skills and depth of world knowledge.
